

Figure 1: (A/C) simulated/measured resonance versus frequency using different magnetic field bias (H_{ex}), (B/D) modeled/fabricated resonator on GGG/YIG/Al.

References

1. Dai, S., Bhawe, S. A. & Wang, R. Octave-Tunable Magnetostatic Wave YIG Resonators on a Chip. IEEE Trans. Ultrason. Ferroelectr. Freq. Control 67, 2454–2460 (2020).
2. Tsutaoka, T., Kasagi, T. & Hatakeyama, K. Permeability spectra of yttrium iron garnet and its granular composite materials under dc magnetic field. J. Appl. Phys. 110, (2011).
3. Dubs, C. et al. Sub-micrometer yttrium iron garnet LPE films with low ferromagnetic resonance losses. J. Phys. D: Appl. Phys. 50, (2017).
4. Costa, J. D. et al. Compact tunable YIG-based RF resonators. Appl. Phys. Lett. 118, (2021).
5. Andreou, E. et al. A reconfigurable patch antenna printed on YIG-epoxy composite substrate. in 2016 10th European Conference on Antennas and Propagation (EuCAP) 1–5 (IEEE, 2016). doi:10.1109/EuCAP.2016.7481572.
6. Ge, J., Wang, T., Peng, Y. & Wang, G. Electrically Tunable Microwave Technologies With Ferromagnetic Thin Film: Recent Advances in Design Techniques and Applications. IEEE Microw. Mag. 23, 48–63 (2022).
7. Kittel, C. On the Theory of Ferromagnetic Resonance Absorption. Phys. Rev. 73, 155–161 (1948).